

The Table is Set
My beloved child,

The table is set.

There is nothing left for you to prepare, nothing left for you to become, and nothing left for you to strive toward in order to arrive. You have been brought through healing, through restoration, and into alignment, and now you stand in the fullness of what has been established.

This month is not about learning how to come to Me. It is about recognizing that you are already with Me.

You are not standing at a distance.
You are not waiting for access.
You are not hoping to be invited in.
You are here.

Everything that has been placed before you has been prepared with intention. The table was not set in response to you. It was set before you, and you have been brought into it. You are no longer moving toward what is ahead. You are living from what is already present.

Remain with Me.

Do not rush past what is in front of you. Do not feel the need to reach for something more. What you need is not beyond you. It is with you. I am with you.

As you move through this final month, allow yourself to settle fully into My presence. Walk with Me without striving. Listen without pressure. Respond without fear. Let everything flow from what has already been placed within you.

You are not a guest at this table.

You are Mine.

And I am yours.

Come, sit, remain, and live from what has already been given.

I am with you.

Always.
